Annual Report

The Lamar Soutter Library • A Legacy of Service and Learning

FY 2006

Director's Message: Charting the Future of the Lamar Soutter Library

Unprecedented opportunities and challenges face today's health sciences libraries, as we seek to improve access to quality health information by faculty, health professionals, students, researchers, and patients. During the last several years, we have seen our competitors grow with the marketing efforts of Amazon.com, Borders, and Google.com, to name just a few. In addition, changing demographic trends, the ongoing technological revolution, new ways in which users come to find the information they need, the economic impact of constantly rising print and electronic journal prices—all these create a need for libraries to strive for relevance in the future. Recognizing the importance of a planned approach to addressing the challenges facing libraries today, the LSL staff embarked this past year on a strategic planning initiative.

The library's strategic planning process involved more than 40 library staff at all levels of the organization and the library committee. The year-long process was the major focus for FY2005-2006, the purview of this annual report. Two retreats, numerous planning teams, several literature searches, focus groups with users, and comparisons with aspirant libraries were used to formulate our view of the modern academic health sciences library. The year culminated with a specific vision, values, mission, slogan, goals, and objectives printed in a document published in April, 2006, which charts the future of the Lamar Soutter Library.

Strategic planning doesn't end with a printed document, however. Nor did the year begin and end with merely a series of meetings. This annual report highlights the ongoing activities of the Lamar Soutter Library and illustrates the vibrant nature of what we do—providing equal access to quality health information to those who need it, any time, any place, and in any format. That will never change.

Hathy Simpson, project director. To provide content assistance and consultation in addressing redesign issues of the Partners in Public Health Website.

Regional and National Accomplishments of the NN/LM, NER

During FY2006, the New England Regional Office of the National Network of Libraries of Medicine completed its first five-year contract which began in 2001. The next five-year contract period has begun and we are excited to continue serving the region by improving access to health information. NER's program areas provide training and services to libraries and other health information providers. Through its subcontracts and awards with member libraries, the NER extends the network beyond libraries to resource centers, health educators, support groups, family caregivers, clinical providers, and patients.

The 515 network members in the New England Region are served through training in resource sharing and information access training by NER coordinators. Over 1,000 service requests were conducted via telephone, in-person, or classroom instruction and sixteen new members were added during the year.

Thirteen awards were issued to eleven member libraries for electronic document delivery or enhancing access through public access desktops. Six Express Outreach awards were issued. Among the activities, there were projects to: develop online courses; conduct environmental health outreach; expand public library outreach; and conduct a health fair and other health related activities.

While in our final year of our contract, four outreach subcontracts were initiated.

Forty-seven classes were held for librarians and the health care workforce with 890 attendees. This broad audience included students from library science programs at Simmons College in Boston and the library science program at the University of Rhode Island.

With NER's exhibits program, 20 local and national venues were attended. Sixteen exhibits were for local events related to library association meetings, health related symposia, and health fairs for the general public.

In consumer health, 20 sessions were held for over 223 attendees receiving training on MedlinePlus and other consumer health information topics. Seven diverse courses were taught within NER's consumer health curriculum. Among these were: "Caring for the Mind: Mental Health Resources," "Complementary and Alternative Medicine Information Resources," and "¿No Comprende? Spanish Health Information Resources."

Office of Medical History and Archives Formed

Overseen by Ellen More, PhD, the newly created Office of Medical History and Archives collects, preserves, and makes available scholarly materials pertaining to the history of UMMS. Recently, Dr. More and a team of colleagues from the Library and the Department of Family Medicine began to identify fruitful subjects for such scholarly pursuits.

Continuing to accept paper donations, Dr. More (with Family Medicine's Dr. Heather-Lyn Haley) has begun to interview individuals whose associations with UMMS extend back to 1974's original class of residents. Other activities included establishing the Women in Medicine and History of Medicine book collections.

eScholarship Launched

The Library launched eScholarship@UMMS, a digital repository of scholarly work from the University of Massachusetts Medical School, in January, 2006. Its purpose is to make the research and scholarly output of UMMS faculty, researchers, staff, and students accessible campus-wide and through internet search engines. Content may include articles, dissertations, presentations, conference papers, or other research in digital form. Each contribution is indexed with medical subject headings and searchable.

With eScholarship@UMMS, the Lamar Soutter Library joined about 160 U.S. academic libraries creating "institutional repositories." Institutional repositories establish a showcase for the school's research, teaching, and scholarship; provide open access to research; and offer a user-friendly process for faculty, researchers, and staff to promote and distribute their work.

As of June 30, 2006, 60 documents had been added to the repository: 40 dissertations from the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences and 20 Library staff publications.

For more information about eScholarship@UMMS, contact Jim Comes at 508-856-6810 or Mary Piorun at 508-856-2206.

LSL Hosts Traveling Exhibit

The LSL welcomed over 500 visitors to the various events held in conjunction with the exhibit Changing the Face of Medicine: Celebrating America's Women Physicians during May and June, 2006. In addition to the opening celebration, special programming included guided tours, lectures and book signings, a film series co-sponsored with the Worcester Public Library, an essay contest for area science students in grades 6-12, a program for area Girl Scouts, a dramatic presentation about Elizabeth Blackwell, and the dedication of a new "Women in Medicine" book collection.

The Library worked closely with the UMMS Women's Faculty Committee, Worcester District Medical Society, Worcester Women's History Project, Women's Health Initiative, Worcester Public Library, Montachusett Girl Scout Council, the YWCA, the Colleges of Worcester Consortium, and area science teachers.

The National Library of Medicine (Bethesda, MD) and the American Library Association (Chicago, ILL) organized the traveling exhibition with support from the National Library of Medicine, the National Institutes of Health Office of Research on Women's Health, and the American Medical Women's Association. The LSL was chosen as one of only 61 libraries in the U.S. to host the exhibit during the next five years.

Reference Librarians Honored

On April 11, 2006, the Lamar Soutter Library was pleased to accept two gifts bestowed by UMMS Graduate School of Nursing faculty member (and doctoral candidate) Alice Bonner and her family. In honor of Alice's late father, Kenneth Freyer, a Reference Librarian at Queens College's Paul Klapper Library, and in gratitude for the work of all Reference Librarians, Ms. Bonner presented a memorial plaque to the LSL staff, and also a scholarship to Judy Nordberg for her pursuit of a Master's Degree in Library Science.

PDA and WebCT Advancements

Starting in the summer of 2005, all third-year School of Medicine (SOM) students have been required to use a PDA device as part of their clinical training. Since then, we have trained first-year GSBS students and first- and second-year SOM students to use WebCT with their studies. The Library staff has also reached out to faculty that have needed assistance in designing instructional resources online.

In addition, for students and other PDA users, the Library has made available on its web page links to required and other free resources, as well as other helpful PDA information. As the Lamar Soutter Library seeks to continuously be at the forefront of emerging health information technologies, we have readily embraced these two new tools. Library staff members were among the first personnel at the School to be fully qualified as WebCT designers.

Pediatric Library Receives Raffle Proceeds

The UMMC Hospital Laboratory Staff donated proceeds from a basic raffle to the Pediatric Family Resource Library in November, 2005. This unexpected gift has provided funds for the purchase of age-appropriate materials to be used by patients and their families in the library and at home. A label acknowledging the gift is placed in each volume purchased. This generous donation enables the Pediatric Family Resource Library to fulfill its mission to "care for our patients like family."
